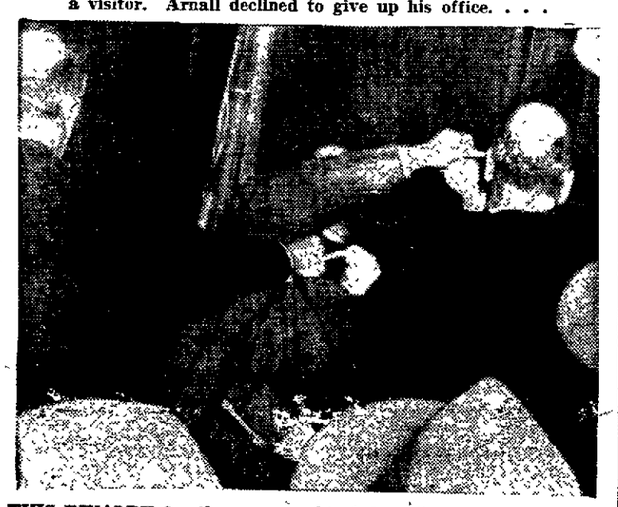
TALMADGE 'PICKS' LOCK; SEIZES ARNALL'S OFFICE

FIRST STEP in the political drama which provided Georgia with two governors was the election of Herman Talmadge, son of the late Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge, by the legislature . . .

GOV. ELLIS ARNALL (left) greeted Talmadge (right) at the governor's office, but refused to recognize him as anything except a visitor. Arnall declined to give up his office. . . .



THIS RIVALRY for the governorship led to fisticuffs at the door of Arnall's office. The fighting was soon ended, but the battle for the governorship goes on, with the problem now being in the hands of the courts.

PLAN TO BUILD CITY BELT-LINE BEING STUDIED

Project, Costing $2,000,000, Was Mapped 20 Years Ago By Engineers.

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of articles on Mansfield's traffic and highway problems.)

By PHILIP GREENE

For 20 years the city of Mansfield has had before it a proposal to relieve part of its traffic headaches, integrate outlying roads and highways, and, at the same time, give a strong stimulus to community development.

The proposal is contained in a plan for improving existing roads and constructing others to form a "belt-line" around the city.

The belt-line idea, sporadically considered in previous years, was put on paper during 1926 to 1928 when the city planning commission suggested it in connection with proposals for zoning ordinances and land use.

Greene

Accordingly, City Engineer W. C. Statler, with the aid of Walter E. Rusk, now county engineer but then working privately, drew plans for the belt-line.

Suggested as feasible and economic, the belt-line was proposed to bound the city on the west over Trimble and Finney roads, on the south by Cook road, on the east by Hesseldon road and the present Illinois avenue, and on the north by Longview avenue.

* * *

Cost Would Be Less.

The belt-line, while affording traffic relief to downtown Mansfield to a lesser degree than would be provided by the state highway department's proposed $15,000,000 expressway, is particularly attractive to local officials because of lower construction and right-of-way costs in relatively undeveloped, low-value areas.

Besides aiding in development of the outskirts of the city,

Mine Explosion Instantly Kills 15 Men In Shaft

PLYMOUTH, Pa.—(UP)—An accumulation of dust or gas was believed today to have caused the explosion which killed 15 miners in the Ottingham colliery of the Glen Alden Coal company.

Two other miners were injured in the blast which occurred 800 feet below the Susquehanna river about 5:30 p. m. yesterday. Only one member of the 18-man crew escaped unscathed.

Bodies of the dead were removed from the shaft about five hours after the explosion. All were believed to have been killed instantly. Officials of the state bureau of mines began an immediate investigation.

Samuel Reese, 35, and Andrew Bolinko, 54, both of Plymouth, who were injured in the blast, said the men were working in a gangway, or tunnel, which branched off from the main shaft. The three survivors were working in a chamber off an adjoining gangway.

The blast was discovered by a tender working at the foot of the shaft. He noticed a cloud of dust creeping through the tunnel and sounded the alarm.

Rescue crews, trained especially for such emergencies, moved into action immediately. Equipped with gas masks, air drills and hand shovels, they went down into the mine and began digging through the debris.

Relatives Wait.

Relatives and friends of the men working in the pit took up a lonely vigil at the tipple awaiting word from below. Priests also stood in the throng waiting to administer the last rites of the Catholic church.

The bodies of the victims were found close together at a point just beneath the river which flows through this small mining community in the heart of the anthracite region.

The blast was the worst in this section in 27 years. In 1919, some 90 miners were killed in an explosion at Wilkes-Barre, just across the Susquehanna from Plymouth.

ALLIES SEEK NEW ALLIANCE

England, France Open Talks on Cooperation Against 'German Menace.'

LONDON —(AP)— Great Britain and France have agreed to enter into a new military alliance against any "fresh German menace," talk on both sides of the English channel about a new era of diplomatic and economic collaboration by the two wartime allies.

Announcement that a treaty of alliance would be concluded "at the earliest possible moment" came from the office of Prime Minister Clement Attlee last night after two days of negotiations with French Premier Leon Blum.

While some observers wondered whether Soviet Russia might not be cool toward such a western entente, a British foreign office spokesman declared the alliance completes "a magnificent triangle in postwar treaties linking eastern and western Europe."

He referred to the French-Soviet pact of 1944 and the British-Soviet treaty of 1942. The new announcement came, however, only a few hours after the Moscow newspaper Pravda asserted that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had repudiated the British-Soviet pact by his December speech in which he said Britain was not "tying" herself to any foreign power.

The joint British-French announcement said that in addition to the treaty of alliance the two countries would "press on urgently" toward plans for mutual reconstruction aid in the economic field.

Blum Gets No Coal.

Blum failed in one of the most urgent tasks of his mission—that of getting more coal immediately from the British-occupied Ruhr—but the statement expressed hope coal shipments could be resumed in April.

The British Press Association said both the United States and Russia were informed in advance concerning the proposed treaty.

The London Morning Press was almost unanimous in praising the new ties with France, but Lord Beaverbrook's Express warned: "Above all other considerations at this time stands the need to sustain and strengthen understanding with Russia. To this aim all other projects may reasonably defer." The Communist Daily Worker was critical, terming the proposal merely a British effort to help out the French Socialists. Most of the Paris papers welcomed the news.

OFFICIALS LAUD FORD FOR CUTS IN CAR PRICES

Motor Firm President Calls His Surprise Action Move Against 'Recession.'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Government officials today hailed the cut in Ford car prices as an "encouraging" start toward the general price reductions which President Truman has asked of all industry.

Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers, termed the Ford action a "crucial" contribution to sustained high production and employment.

Nourse added to a reporter that "a number of business people" have notified him of their "agreement in principle" with the president's plea for lower prices as a means of keeping public purchasing power high. Nourse's council wrote the framework of Mr. Truman's economic message to congress last week.

"Mr. Ford's statement was made in most careful and reasoned terms—it should appeal to a large business following," said the economist, with reference to yesterday's price-cutting announcement in Detroit by Henry Ford II, president of the Ford Motor company.

"If other manufacturers follow suit, they will make a real contribution to stabilizing business."

Ford announced immediate reductions ranging up to $50 on all Ford cars, as a "common sense" move to avert the recession which has been widely forecast for this year.

Presidential Assistant John R. Steelman, former reconversion director, promptly wired Ford that the announcement was "good news for the country and I believe good business for your company."

Congress Applauds.

Members of congress also were quick to applaud.

Seldom has the action of a single private firm produced similar elation here—a possible sign of the government's anxiety over the possible 1947 "dip" foreseen by the economic council on Dec. 19.

Mr. Truman's economic report cautioned that a "serious" drop in purchasing power already is visible. Unless price and wage adjustments are made in time, it said, there is danger that "consumer buying will falter, orders to manufacturers will decline, production will drop, and unemployment will grow."

The president's plea that industry meet slower sales by cutting prices instead of curtailing output and laying off workers was the keynote of the entire message. Wage increase alone cannot bolster buying power sufficiently, Mr. Truman said, without setting off a new inflationary spiral.

Turmoil Grows In Georgia as Rivals Battle

Son of 'Old Gene' Gains Possession of Executive Quarters by Surprise Move Under Cover of Darkness

ATLANTA—(AP)—Ellis Arnall attempted to enter the governor's executives offices today but was stopped by the secretary of Herman Talmadge who has claimed the office.

Young Talmadge, elected by the legislature, took physical possession of the capitol suite earlier with a statement "as governor of Georgia I have taken complete charge of the executive offices at the state capitol."

Arnall's entry to the offices was blocked by Ben Odom, secretary to Talmadge.

Arnall set up temporary offices in the rotunda of the state capitol.

As Arnall arrived in the anteroom which opens into the executive offices at the capitol, he was met by Odum and during a brief exchange of words at the door Arnall continued to pound upon it demanding admittance.

* * *

Forces Way In.

From within the room guards stationed at the door refused to open and called repeatedly for "Colonel." Finally the door was opened and Arnall forced his way in.

Arnall strode across the floor to a door leading into the executive's private office where he was met by an aide of Talmadge who told him to have a seat when he said he desired to see Talmadge.

In a blunt question directed repeatedly at Odum, Arnall said dramatically:

"Are you denying me the right to enter my office?"

Odum insisted each time that he was not denying Arnall entrance to "your office", but that he would not permit him "to enter the office of Mr. Talmadge who is now the legal governor of the state of Georgia."

* * *

Talks To Crowd.

After continued futile demands to gain entrance, Arnall turned to the room which was crowded with photographers, newsmen and Talmadge supporters and said:

"Gentlemen of the press. It is quite obvious that I am denied access to my office. It is quite obvious that Mr. Talmadge is afraid to see me face to face.

"Last night a perfect panzer movement was executed which resulted in the removal of the locks from these doors by military force from the Talmadge organization. . . . A suit has been instituted in the courts of Georgia to sustain my position.

"I hereby place on order all department heads . . . and notify them that henceforth they act at their peril unless expressly under direction from Ellis Arnall."

Arnall, continuing, said that the attorney general had ruled that he should remain in office until his successor is duly qualified and ready to assume the office. Arnall repeatedly referred to Talmadge as "that pretender," and added that "I propose to continue to act as governor of Georgia until Lieutenant Governor M. E. Thompson is sworn in and can take over.

"The issues now involved transcend personalities and involve themselves into the question of whether the people of Georgia shall rule and democracy prevail or whether the state will give way to rule by force and barbarism."

INDUSTRY RAPS PORTAL CLAIMS

Top Manufacturer Calls Pay Suits 'Fantastic Threat' to All U. S. Business.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Representatives of manufacturers told congress today that the portal-to-portal pay situation is a "fantastic threat to the solvency of American industry."

Spokesmen for industries declared that the supreme court's decision in the portal case will "destroy" law-abiding employers and be more severe on those paying highest wages to labor.

The witnesses testified before a senate judiciary subcommittee and laid down a pattern of proposed legislation to nullify the portal pay suits.

Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mills company, of Middletown, Ohio, voiced the "fantastic" threat to American industry.

Hook testified that suits filed against the steel industry as a whole total approximately one billion dollars—and he pointed out that this is larger than the industry's total cash holdings.

Steel's cash position at the end of 1945 was less than 700 million dollars, he said:

"One billion dollars," he testified, "is a larger amount than the entire net earnings of all companies in the steel industry for the five years, 1942-46 inclusive."

Hook said that many of his company's workers have "voluntarily talked to me personally and expressed the opinion that these suits were unfair and unjust."

The American Rolling Mill company's president said that suits totaling not less than 20 million dollars have been filed against four of his plants—at Houston, Tex., two million dollars; Middletown, four millions; Ashland, Ky., ten millions; and Kansas City, Mo., four millions.

U. S. WANTS LESS WHEAT AND CORN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Secretary of Agriculture Anderson called upon American farmers today to reduce their wheat, corn and barley acreages in 1947 and boost production of flaxseed to meet linseed oil requirements.

Anderson announced farm production goals for 1947 calling for the planting of a total of 356,893,000 acres, an increase of 11,782,000 acres from the amount planted in 1946.

Anderson's final livestock goals remained virtually unchanged from the production he recommended last November. He called for an increase of 510,000 acres in tame hay.

He urged farmers to reduce planting of wheat by one million acres and put that acreage into the production of flaxseed. He set the 1947 flaxseed goal at five million acres.

He called for reduction of 700,000 acres for corn and 516,000 acres for barley. He said lower corn and barley acreages "appeared desirable" because the supply of feed grains per animal for the year probably will be the most liberal in history.

Anderson declared that "continuing large requirements" for linseed oil necessitated increased flaxseed. That adjustments in wheat acreage must come from the spring wheat area because winter wheat already has been planted. He said a record winter wheat crop, exceeding last year's 873,893 bushels, is now indicated.

Senator Opposes Gas In Pipelines

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Sen. Francis J. Myers, D., Pa., today asked congress to bar sale of the big inch pipelines for transmission of natural gas long enough to give the hard coal industry "a fair chance to defend its life."

He said "some articulate groups in this country" want the lines used for gas to "punish John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers."

Generals Button Lips In German War Trials

NUERNBERG—(AP)—American attorneys declared today that German generals are giving them the silent treatment, a major impediment in the prosecution of war crimes.

Repeated interrogation of high-ranking officers has failed to develop the slightest tendency to "squeal" on each other, these attorneys said. They interpreted this silence as a massed effort to salvage the honor of the Wehrmacht.

One prominent prosecutor attributed the situation to two things:

1. The generals have not been given any incentive to "talk." All are under lock and key and have been for a year and a half with the expectation of being prosecuted for something.

2. Many fear that the German people would eventually brand them as "collaborators."

"We offer them nothing, not even freedom from indictment," this attorney said. "They figure they have nothing to gain by talking and everything to win by keeping silent."

Claims Truth Lacking.

"You can count on the fingers of your hands generals who have told us the frank truth."

The "collaboration" angle is equally important, he added. The generals are arrogant, think Germany will be "relieved" of occupation soon and they want to return to their former high status in their communities. Any notoriety stemming from testimony against the army or an individual would follow them forever, they calculate.

F. H. DRIVE ENDS $3,355 SHORT

The campaign to raise $60,000 for a new $235,000 Friendly House passed its deadline today still $3,355 short of its goal.

Campaign leaders, however, expressed hope that a continuing campaign among industrial employes would more than make up the difference. The "clean-up" phase of the campaign will continue through this week and possibly into next, said Chairman Paul Endriss.

Today's total of $56,645 in gifts was an increase of $1,825 from yesterday.

"The success of the drive is still contingent on solicitations in several industrial plants and on individual contributions," Endriss added. "Campaign headquarters in the R. E. Moorhead showrooms will be held open until further notice."

Largest of the late contributions was $1,100 from the Charles Hoffman company.

The Parent-Teachers' association of Brinkerhoff school donated $75, pupils of the school contributed $50 and the teachers $26.

Other late contributors included: J. C. Penny company, $225; Isaly Dairy company, $200; Globe Steel Abrasive company, $119; Pilgrim Guild of the First Congregational church, Kearns Packing company, Safety Cab company, National Electric company, Mansfield Optimist club, and the Frank Beymer Construction company, $50 each.

Contributors of $25 each were: Swan Dry Cleaners, Mary Washington chapter, DAR, Feigenbaum Painters, Topsy Coney Island, Ohio State Beverage company, Borden Dairy company, German Home society, Phoenix hotel, American Legion Post 72, Auxiliary, and RHO chapter of Chi Sigma sorority.

Other donors were: Ruth Robbins Kindergarten, $23.75 Ladies Auxiliary of the Firemen's Local; Future Outlook League, $10, and Geiger funeral home, $20.

LONDON TRUCK STRIKE TO END

LONDON —(UP)— The 10-day strike of London transport workers was settled today when delegates of the strikers voted to return to work Saturday.

The back-to-work vote of the strikers' representatives broke the deadlock between the transport union on the one hand and the employers and government negotiators on the other.

Today's sudden decision assured an end of the paralyzing walkout of the transport workers and the thousands of workers who struck in sympathy after the government put troops to work to distribute foodstuffs.

It was understood that the demands of the workers will be considered by the newly formed joint industrial council of employers and trade unions. The employers were understood to have offered the men an eight-hour day and overtime pay for all work over eight hours. The strike originally was called in protest against refusal of the workers demand for a 40-hour week.

Approximately 60,000 workers had joined the strike and sympathy walkouts before the settlement.

WINTER DUE BACK FRIDAY

Old Man Winter was due for a comeback today.

The weatherman predicted that the unseasonable temperatures and rain were expected to end this afternoon in the face of colder weather, with this morning's intermittent rain scheduled to turn into snow late today.

The temperatures, which have ranged up to 20 degrees above normal during the last three days, would drop into the 20's by tomorrow morning. Light snow flurries were forecast for tonight, and the prediction for tomorrow was generally fair and cold.

Yesterday's temperatures were somewhat lower than the previous day, with a high of 39 recorded at Hayesville, while the low this morning was 32. Precipitation was .30 inches. Considerably higher temperatures were prevalent in Columbus, with a high of 45.

WARNS AGAINST BAD VACCINES

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Dr. Wendell M. Stanley of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research warned last night against certain impure influenza vaccines now on the market.

Stanley, 1946 Nobel prize winner in chemistry, told the Detroit section of the American Chemical society that impure vaccines may cause "unfavorable reactions."

Of the four types of influenza vaccine now on sale, Stanley said, only one, developed under his direction and available to all biological manufacturers, is prepared by centrifugal force.

The methods used in preparing the other three types "are not very effective in the purification of the virus," he said.

"The worth or immunizing potency of a vaccine is due to the virus which it contains and not to non-virus protein impurities," Stanley said. "As a matter of fact, such impurities may be responsible for unfavorable reactions following the administration of the vaccine."

He added that large-scale use of impure vaccines might make patients sensitive to proteins and cause them to "suffer serious reactions."

Stanley said war-time development of effective vaccines averted the possibility of a major influenza epidemic similar to that which claimed 15,000,000 lives and affected 500,000,000 persons in 1918.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennet Cerf

The village blacksmith was mighty as all get-out, possibly because he stood under the very spreading chestnut tree that most of these jokes came from.

Nevertheless, he had trouble finding an apprentice who would put up with the hard labor and the low pay. He finally got hold of one recruit, husky enough, but with a suspiciously blank look in his eyes. The blacksmith carefully explained, "Now I'll bring the shoe from the fire and lay it on this anvil. When I nod my head you smash it with this hammer."

The apprentice did exactly what he was told. Now he's the village blacksmith.

Sandy McTarvish (inspiration for Ogden Nash's immortal couplet, "No McTavish was ever lavish") returned from Palm Beach with a magnificent tan, as expected, and an alligator on a leash, altogether unexpected. McTavish explained affably, "I'm nae gaun to lose sight of him. He gobbled my golf ball at the river-r-r-hole!"

TRUSTIES FACE LONGER TERMS

Two Mansfield reformatory trusties who fled the institution farm late Saturday, were returned yesterday afternoon after their capture by Mt. Vernon police.

Sgt. D. B. Mavis of the Mt. Vernon force said the men were found hiding in an auto repair garage around 11:30 p. m. Tuesday. He added that the mother and step-father of Jack Sharp, 29, one of the inmates, live in Mt. Vernon, but Sharp was not believed to have visited his home.

Arthur L. Glattke, reformatory superintendent, said that the two, Sharp and Jack Cantrel, 24, will face institution court sometime next week. Usual sentence for apprehended escape is two years' additional time.

Sharp was received Aug. 30, 1938, from Delaware county to serve from 10 to 25 years for robbery. Cantrel, serving a one-to-20-year sentence, was received Oct. 17, 1945, from Ashtabula county for cutting with intent to wound.

FLAMES DESTROY BARN NEAR SHELBY

SHELBY — Fire destroyed a large barn on the George Metzer farm in Sharon township about 10:45 p. m. yesterday.

The Shelby fire department battled the flames for two hours.

All the cattle was removed from the barn, but a tractor and hammer mill were destroyed in the blaze, Mrs. Metzer said today. The loss was covered by insurance, she said.

HERBERT PLANS ASSEMBLY TALK

COLUMBUS —(INS— The 97th Ohio general assembly today awaited the legislative message which Governor Herbert will deliver to a joint session of the house and senate at 7:30 p. m., next Monday night.

In line with his campaign promises, Herbert is expected to advocate submission of a soldier bonus proposal to the people at the coming November 4 election, as well as a cut in some state taxes and additional aid to schools and local governments.

However, his original proposal for a cut in the sales tax from three to two per cent may be sidetracked. Underscoring this possibility was the recommendation of the state small business commission, established by the last legislature, that the sales tax be maintained as it now is.

Both houses were in adjournment until the Monday evening session. The house, which has yet to receive its first bill, adjourned for the week Tuesday, and the senate followed suit yesterday after seven more bills were tossed in the legislative hopper.

Officials Delay Trip to Chicago

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn and City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner postponed their scheduled trip to Chicago today to confer with George W. West, regional director of the Civil Aeronautics authority, on the municipal airport lease. Vaughn said Wagner was suffering from a cold.

The discussions in Chicago were to have concerned exclusive concession rights at the airport, Vaughn said. These rights now are held by the Harrington Air Service, Inc., under terms of a contract between Harrington and the city. The firm has several suits pending against it by various creditors, and involuntary bankruptcy proceedings have been filed.

Beauty Expert Demonstrates New 'Safe-Wave' Treatment

Assurance that women no longer must endure skin irritations, over-processed permanents and the resultant frizzy tresses in their quest for beauty was given yesterday by Leonard J. Goler, owner of the Independent Beauty and Barber Supply company of Mansfield.

Goler served as spokesman for an area demonstration of the new "Safe-Wave," an improved cold-wave process developed by Raymond Laboratories of St. Paul, Minn. An afternoon demonstration was held at the Southern hotel before approximately 40 shop owners and operators from a 75-mile radius of the city. The evening demonstration attracted more than 100.

Miss Vivian Carpenter of St. Paul, with Mrs. J. S. Wilds, 131 West Third street, serving as her model, demonstrated the heatless wave.

By the end of the processing time, approximately 30 minutes, Mrs. Wilds' hair was softly and deeply waved, with no trace of tangles or frizziness.

"A wave of this sort can not be over-processed, even though the solution was left on for two hours," Goler commented.

STATE OFFERS SECOND PLAN

which is admittedly growing rapidly, the belt-line system would tie into every major and minor highway entering Mansfield.

Through traffic, by following highway signs just as it does through the city today, could easily avoid downtown congestion, thereby lessening it that much, at only a little extra mileage, Rusk points out.

"The only motorists who might find the belt-line too long would be those bound directly east and west through the city. The rest would find it much more convenient to use a the modern belt-line highway around the city," he said.

Cost at $2,000,000.

Estimated to cost approximately $2,000,000, the belt-line would be about 13 miles long, almost exactly square with the city in the center of it. Construction would consist almost entirely of widening and improving some 10 miles of existing roadways and creation of only slightly more than three miles of new highway.

New addition would consist of a one-mile extension of Cook road to join with Hesseldon road at its intersection with the upper Mansfield-Lucas road and extension of Longview avenue to connect with Illinois avenue on the east and Trimble road on the west.

Original plan also called for further extension of Longview avenue to intersections with U. S. Route 42 slightly east of Stewart road and with U. S. Route 30-N at the Lexington-Springmill road.

The plan was put forward with hopes that the belt-line would eventually become part of the state highway system since it would be outside the city and would provide a means of connecting all present state and U. S. highways.

Connected in it would be U. S. Routes 42, both north and south of the city, U. S. Routes 30 on the east and 30-N and 30-S on the west. State Routes 545, 39 and 13 on the north and northwest, State Route 545 on the southwest, State Route 13 on the south, and State Route 39 on the east or southeast.

In addition, nine county and township roads entering the city would connect with it.

Nurse's Body Is Found In Stream

AKRON —(INS)— The body of a 24-year-old private nurse was found 600 yards downstream after the car in which she was riding plunged into a small pond in nearby Macedonia today.

The nurse, Miss Irene Mattson, of Cleveland, was riding in an automobile with John Peter Paul Blown, 22, of Cleveland, when it crashed through a flimsy barrier at the end of a dead-end highway and submerged in the pond. Macedonia Police Chief G. M. Nine said that the initial investigation indicated the girl drowned but he added that an official conclusion had not been made.

CHIANG GOVERNMENT AGAIN SEEKS PEACE

NANKING —(AP)— The government announced officially today it would "resume negotiations with the Communists" and selected Gen. Chang Chih-Chung, governor of Sinkiang province, to present its proposals to Communist headquarters at Yenan.

Chang was an original member of General Marshall's former committee of three that negotiated a quickly aborted truce a year ago.

U. S. Ambassador Stuart relayed the government's decision to the Communist representative here. Success of the plan to send an emissary to Yenan will depend upon the reaction of Communist leaders there.

HEART ATTACK FATAL

CLEVELAND—(AP)—A heart attack was fatal last night to Brig. Gen. Woods King, 46, former commander of the 107th cavalry regiment and winner of the Distinguished Service Medal for service in the Chinese Eastern theater of operations.

FACES STAMP CHARGE

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Federal Judge Mell G. Underwood today ordered the removal of Yance Murphy Bridgeforth, 42, of Chicago, where he is under indictment for illegal possession and transfer of counterfeit sugar ration stamps.

CITY REPAIRS CUT

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Columbus city council had earmarked $174,623 today for a program of overhauling traffic control signs and marking throughout the city.

Interchange of Ideas Will Be Helpful

MAYOR VAUGHN'S idea of inviting representatives of various Mansfield groups to engage in informal discussion of civic affairs with city officials, including all department heads, is a good one and merits full co-operation.

It sometimes appears that a majority of people regard their responsibility as ending when officials have been elected, rather than evidencing continued interest by expressing their views on subjects having to do with municipal affairs.

This lethargic attitude on the part of many citizens of a community makes it possible for selfishly interested minority groups to exert pressure on officials in matters of lax law enforcement, neglect of zoning regulations, and the like.

Another hampering influence is the frequent change of city administrations—with probable political shifts in department personnel—which makes it difficult to adopt and carry through any long-range program of municipal improvements.

As various group leaders — industry, labor, veterans, churches, schools, and others—meet with city officials and air their views, it appears quite likely that all will have better understanding of the variety of problems that enter into making this a desirable city in which to live, work, and rear a family.

And it is just possible, also, that a way may be found to expedite needed improvements, rather than permitting them to lag along year after year because of the absence of concerted effort.

Dimes Are Marching Again

THERE were 25,000 cases of infantile paralysis in the United States in 1946. Although this epidemic touched Mansfield lightly, it does point to the need for continuing the battle against polio. Indeed, it indicates reason to step up the fight.

Of the four cases in Mansfield last year, three were taken care of privately. The fourth case used up nearly all the funds remaining from last year's March of Dimes drive. Obviously, the local unit of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis needs more money than just enough to care for one case.

Half of the funds raised locally—the total last year was $5,800—go to the national fund. This may appear to be a large proportion but it must be recalled that the national fund to date has spent $12,314,465 for research and education. The national unit also comes to the aid of local treasuries when they are depleted, as was the case in 64 epidemic areas last year.

This explains the reason for the slogan "Give Double" in 1947.

China's Troublesome Factions

THE BLISTERING criticism both of Chiang Kai-shek and the Communists in China, by General Marshall before his appointment as secretary of state carries even more weight than it did when uttered as he was about to leave China for a flight home.

Chiang Kai-shek and his followers "are interested in their own feudal control of China," his statement said. The Communists are determined on a communistic form of government, are anti-democratic and want to arouse bitter hatred of Americans. Both sides, hopelessly suspicious of each other, could have put China on the road to internal peace had they agreed to propositions put before them by him a year ago. China's hope now lies with the liberals, a splendid group of men, and the minority parties. But these elements lack the political strength needed.

These utterances, when delivered, were the expressions of a high placed American emissary from the president of the United States. They now take on the guise of official pronouncement by the state department. Americans can be proud of the courage and forthrightness of this statement. There is no hedging, and all elements in China will probably have more respect for Secretary Marshall as a result.

Variety In Mid-Winter Vacations

WHILE many people feel inclined to journey to the warm southlands for the mid-winter months (and some actually go), other hardier folk trek northward for their January-February vacations—to mountain slopes in New England, the Northwest, and to Canada. Balanced jauntily on their shoulders are skis and poles tied securely together, and in heavy suit cases are all kinds of warm woolens.

Advertisements of ski resorts are enticing: Winter can be wonderful, they say. They talk about "gliding down snow packed ski trails through exhilarating mountain air," about sleigh rides and skating. At night there are glowing logs in the big fireplace of the lounge, a good dinner and then comfortable beds.

Let those vigorous ones go after more snow and more cold. The warm sands of a coral beach, the soft breeze in palm trees, and the orange blooms seem much more appealing from this vantage point.

Those High-Priced Stage Shows

THE American theater seems to be booming, as judged by box office receipts in New York, and other standard tests, but William F. McDermott, a mid-western critic and an old-timer, is rather Missourian about it. Thinking it over after his latest visit to New York, he admits that New Year's week packed in a lot of people, and the fountainhead of the industry superficially looks all right. But he sort of felt that something was missing. New Year's eve, with all its glamor, seemed a little hollow. He came to the following conclusions.

There was no friendliness in the entrance fees. A musical show sets the patron back $8.40 to $9.60, and it is usually necessary to buy tickets from brokers. The outlay for one gentleman escort is figured at more than $20. Naturally relatively few people can afford such prices.

Noting that the "Citrus Queen of 1947" was chosen because she "embodies the health, beauty and richness of the California grapefruit," Harry Wade suggests that "she is also an eyeful."

A recent survey is reported to have disclosed that the average city editor has 1.6 children—indicating, perhaps, that there is no such person as an exactly "average city editor."

According to an English physician, "there is no such thing as an ideal marriage"—but is there an "ideal" anything, for that matter?

ALADDIN AND HIS WONDERFUL LAMP

Byrnes Used Unique Strategy In Countering Molotov's Demands

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—When the history of post-war peace is finally written, one of the most important chapters will deal with the sudden improvement of American-Russian relations in the late fall of 1946.

And with the resignation of the one man who sat all through those negotiations, it is now possible to reveal some of the gripping, day-to-day drama by which Jimmie Byrnes, almost single-handed, accomplished this improvement.

All during the sessions of the Paris peace conference, Molotov was nasty. He was deliberately, consistently, almost unbearably nasty. This writer, who watched part of the Paris peace conference, marveled at the way Jimmie Byrnes smiled back at the goading of the Soviet foreign minister.

Byrnes, however, surmised what probably was true; namely, that Molotov was acting under instructions from Moscow—instructions to make the peace negotiations as difficult as possible.

Despite Molotov's pin-pricking, however, he and Byrnes continued the social amenities, and once every week or so they dined together— a very small dinner attended only by their two interpreters, Pavlov and Chip Bohlen, and their two chief advisres, Ben Cohen and Vice Commissar Vishinsky.

Nasty as Molotov was during the early days of the conference, his nastiness increased toward the end. Finally as Byrnes gave his last dinner to Molotov and it was the latter's turn to return the invitation, the usually punctilious Molotov did not do so. This Byrnes interpreted as a sign that things were getting even worse.

The Last Dinner.

Finally, Molotov proposed that all negotiations be terminated by the next night, and simultaneously invited Byrnes to dinner on the closing night—a clear indication that he didn't want to expose himself to Byrnes' contagious charm before staging his last burst of temperament at the wind-up of the Paris conference.

The last session closed at 9:30; so Byrnes and Molotov did not sit down to dinner until 10 p. m. And as the two tired statesmen relaxed over their brandy, Byrnes said to the man who had so bitterly opposed him:

"Why didn't you tell me at the start there were certain things you couldn't discuss? It's obvious that you have instructions not to discuss certain points. Why didn't you tell me so? Instead, you have called us names, wasted a lot of time and got everybody mad. If you had told us that you couldn't discuss certain things, we wouldn't have bothered you."

"That's a good idea," replied Molotov, still unbending.

But later, as the Russian mellowed a bit more, Byrnes approached him again.

What Moscow Wants.

"What is it that Russia really wants?" he asked. "Behind all this argument and conversation, what are you really driving at?"

"Ten billion dollars reparations from Germany," Molotov shot back.

"But you know you can't get it."

"It was agreed to at Yalta," argued Molotov.

"No, it was agreed at Yalta that Russia's claim would be a point for discussion," countered Byrnes. "President Roosevelt made that very clear. And later, at Potsdam, we wasted a lot of time debating that Truman and Stalin finally agreed this was to be only a point for discussion."

The secretary of state then asked Molotov what other backstage motive lurked behind Russia's disagreeable tactics at the Paris conference.

"What else do you want?" he inquired.

"The Ruhr," replied Molotov.

Again Byrnes said no

It was on this very sour and negative note that the Paris conference closed. Neither side had budged an inch and behind the Soviet policy of studied insults, it was obvious they were aiming at important economic goals.

It was in this same atmosphere that the Big Four conference talks first began in New York. Only significant development between Paris and New York was Molotov's quick trip back to Moscow, where it was reported he got fresh instructions from the Politburo.

What these instructions were nobody definitely knows, though it was believed the friendly advice Molotov received from Byrnes during their dinner in Paris may have been relayed back to Moscow and sunk home.

Yugoslavs Outbluffed.

Though more agreeable, the Russians yielded on nothing basic, and the climax of the New York talks came when Yugoslav Vice Premier Kardelj quit the conference altogether. Yugoslavia would not yield on Trieste, Kardelj said, and walked out.

Since Trieste was the heart of the entire Italian treaty, this looked like the end. Next day, however, Yugoslav delegate Kardelj came to see Byrnes and suggested a compromise. Byrnes listened carefully but found that the compromise was all in Yugoslavia's favor. He replied that it was unacceptable.

"Don't you want a treaty?" asked the puzzled Yugoslav.

"No," replied the secretary of state. "We have given up all thought of a treaty. You walked out on us yesterday, and since then we have given up any idea of signing a treaty.

"We have talked it over with the Italians," Byrnes continued, "and they are quite agreeable to waiting until next year. Next year they say they'll be stronger and will be able to take care of the situation by themselves.

"We're going to leave our troops in Trieste, of course," Byrnes informed the now pop-eyed and bewildered Yugoslav. "You won't have to worry about policing the city. We'll take care of that.

"No," concluded the secretary of state. "We've simply decided that there are too many headaches in getting a peace treaty, so we just won't worry about it any more."

The Yugoslav delegate looked very crestfallen. Jimmie Byrnes' trump diplomatic card was beginning to work.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, Jan. 16, 1927.

Report on success of year-round fire prevention program was issued by Chamber of Commerce.

Annual memorial service for deceased members was held at Main street Evangelical church.

Porch at home of Frank Yeager, 48 South Diamond street, was wrecked when auto ran into it, following collision.

Maccabees established district office in Mansfield with Frank DeWitt as manager.

George Gump, sr., 67, died at his home, 71 South Foster street.

M. L. Sowash went to West Baden, Ind., to attend national convention of dyers and cleaners.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs Luther Totman, Bowman street road.

H. M. Conlon came to Mansfield from Clarksburg, W. Va., to manage United Woolen Mills store.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

On Jan. 16, 1944, General Dwight Eisenhower arrived in London from the United States to take command of the Allied liberation forces.

Dave Boone Says:

BERNARD M. BARUCH, at 76, asked why he quit the atomic-energy job, said, "well, I had come to the end of my furrow. Now I am going to sit by and let time pass me." The odds are all against this. Barney is not a natural sitter. He's a jumper-upper.

* * *

A man with such intense interest in his country's welfare and in what is going on all over the world just can't sit by and let time pass him. For time will look like the same old exciting parade and he will be leaping up every little while to help somewhere.

* * *

My hunch is that the chair or bench he elects to sit on will be vacant two-thirds of the time. There will almost always be a note on it: "sitting postponed for 48 hours."

* * *

You're kidding yourself, Barney. Unless you've arranged to be tied to the seat.

(EXCLUSIVE) I was so close to John D. Rockefeller, jr., yesterday I could have touched him . . . but before I could think how much to touch him for he moved away.

* * *

We rode 30 unforgettable floors together in an elevator and as if by mutual agreement no word passed between us. . . . I like a man who can keep his teeth buttoned.

* * *

It was natural modesty. . . . He hesitated to tell me he was Rockefeller and I hesitated to tell him I wasn't.

* * *

But if he cracked I was ready for him. All he had to say was, "I'm John D. Rockefeller, jr.," and I would have shot back, "I know . . . I always use your buildings."

* * *

But enough of that. . . . I shall put it all in my next book . . . "An Intimate Glimpse of John D. Rockefeller, jr."

* * *

And if you think that's silly get a load of "Russia today" articles coming out under the pen of 48-hour visitors.

If anybody can size up Russia in 48 hours I can cover Rockefeller in 30 floors . . . He's smaller.

Assignment: America

—By KENNETH L. DIXON

Congress to Learn Plight of Teachers.

WASHINGTON — Some members of the new congress currently are investigating the necessity of providing some sort of federal financial aid for substandard school districts across the country.

And, speaking as an ex-country school teacher ($45 a month!), the boys and girls are going to get an earful of shocking facts.

They're already learning that more than half a million qualified American teachers have quit their profession during the past five years, forcing the hiring of countless unqualified teachers on an "emergency certificate" basis, and forcing the closing of more than 10,000 classrooms this winter alone.

They are going to learn why, as far as teachers are concerned, the "three R's" now are known as "Rags, Regimentation and Ridicule."

They will find mountains of shameful statistics to show why even school teachers who love their profession no longer can afford to stay with it. But perhaps individual examples can best dramatize the drastic dilemma:

Most veterans who were former teachers now find they would have been much better off financially in the service than in the classroom.

In one northeastern city, teachers are paid less than the garbage collectors.

In New York (one of the better salary states), one male teacher works as a bartender at night in order to support his family.

In the same area, a girl dances in a night club in order to make enough money to be able to afford to continue teaching during the day. She likes teaching.

In West Virginia, a male teacher worked regular night shifts in the coal mines in order to feed and clothe his family. He made much more money as a miner—until the board found out about it.

In Mississippi, a girl quit teaching because she could double her salary as a restaurant cashier, and a young man resigned his job as grade school principal when he found he could "make twice the money in half the time" as an unskilled construction worker.

In New Mexico, scores of experienced, educated instructors quit to take ordinary clerical jobs at the various air bases.

During the war, thousands grabbed at the chance to quit and go to work in war plants; take stenographic jobs, become waitresses, receptionists, hat check girls, or bricklayers, welders and machinists.

All those jobs paid better than teaching, and since they still can get work easily—or keep it—even though the war is over, they're staying away from the classrooms in droves.

Right here in Washington, the congressmen will discover that government workers, waitresses, streetcar motormen, ushers, parking lot attendants, most store clerks, and even the senate page boys make more money than school teachers—and work fewer hours.

They will find that, despite an unprecedented wartime rise, the average salary of elementary and secondary school teachers across the country still is only about $1,850 annually, including high school instructors with a fistful of degrees.

Chop off federal income taxes, check the rising living costs, spread that out over the year and see how far it goes toward rent, groceries, clothes and other essentials.

Worse yet, they will find that thousands of teachers in such states as Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee and Vermont as late as last year received less than $600 for their entire year's work!

Most of these people spent thousands of dollars and many years of their lives educating and training themselves for what they thought would be respectable teaching jobs—only to find that they got less pay than an uneducated, unskilled day laborer.

* * *

(Editor's Note — Will better wages alone bring the teachers back to school? The next column discusses the astonishing social regimentation and restriction on teachers in some American communities.)

Bilbo's Future Chances.

The assorted home state schemes to get Bilbo back into the Senate, if he should be denied a seat, quite probably would miss fire. It might take two dozen of the best Philadelphia lawyers to pass upon the case legally.

But from a practical and common sense standpoint, if Bilbo were thrown out on the constitutional right of the Senate to pass upon the qualifications of its members, and if it were done because of moral turpitude in war contract dealings, then Bilbo would be out—not for a few months or a year or two but for the rest of time.

Otherwise, in sending Bilbo back, the governor of Mississippi or even the people of the state would be overriding the constitutional action of the Senate in behalf of the whole nation. And the doctrine of state rights does not carry exactly that far. In short, the Senate has the final word on Bilbo.—Kansas City Times.

Tax-Cutting Will Not Be An Easy Job.

WASHINGTON — Nothing has so sobered Republicans since they assumed control of congress as the job they now face to carry out their election promises to reduce expenditures and cut taxes.

It was easy to try "bureaucracy" from the campaign stump, and it looked easier to fulfill their campaign promises until President Truman submitted his proposed $37,500,000,000 budget for the 1948 fiscal year.

Now Republicans are up against the realities. They have had time now to scan the Truman budget. Their job doesn't look so simple as they get down to specific details.

For the moment, at least, the talk about tax reduction is soft-pedaled. For this will take some $3 to $4 billion if they go through with their flat 20 per cent personal income-tax reduction program, and $5 billion or over if they disregard President Truman's advice further and let war excise taxes lapse.

That's a lot of money to find in the total cost of a government that is big and still has postwar obligations.

Republican leaders have found out now, too, that progressive elements in both parties in congress are putting themselves on the alert carefully to watch cuts in appropriations to see whether they affect functions embodying the principles of progressive government for the benefit of the whole people.

Big-city Democrats and Republicans are interested especially in various functions in the social welfare category—housing, education, social security, public health and medical care. Western Democrats and Republicans are interested in public power development, in river development, in highways, and in anti-trust protection for their smaller business and industries against monopolistic combines.

They are most conscious that big private interests are all set to exploit the "economy" campaign to curtail various functions of government sponsored in recent years by progressive groups in both parties.

These progressive elements plan to observe closely beginning with the first step required in the budget process.

This is the formulation of a legislative budget as now provided under the congressional reorganization act. The appropriations committees of house and senate, and the tax-raising committees of each branch—house ways and means and senate finance—must prepare this budget on behalf of congress as to total revenues and total expenditures. They do this after considering the president's budget and making their own studies. It must be ready a month hence, by Feb. 15.

Republicans will have the responsibility of this budget, since they control congress and for the four committees involved.

While the reorganization act requires only the total figures of revenues and expenditures, and not details, the progressives will demand to know how the figure is arrived at, that is, how and where cuts will be made. They may not get an answer at this stage, though they will make the record.

But all the details will be disclosed when the appropriation bills are brought forward, one after another. Then it can be pointed out just what functions will be affected by the reductions. Unless these are denoted, it will be hard for the public ever to find out what happened, for appropriation bills are complicated matters.

Temperate Labor Legislation Needed.

WASHINGTON—We Americans tend to believe that all evils can be cured by law. Under that delusion we have made some terrible mistakes.

One of the worst was prohibition. That was a whopper. It dealt the whole movement for temperance and moderation a blow from which it has never recovered. From the tragic prohibition era we inherited a lawless gangsterism that is still a curse.

We may be about to make another mistake like prohibition. We may try to cure our "labor troubles" by law. And the result may be just as dismal. Just as disastrous, as prohibition.

The new congress will pass a revised Case Bill within a few weeks. It can probably be passed over the president's veto, should Mr. Truman decide to send it back to Capitol Hill. A bill banning the closed shop has been introduced, and another outlawing nationwide collective bargaining.

Many features in the revised Case Bill are long overdue. It outlaws the jurisdictional strike, which more than anything else has set the general public against organized labor. It outlaws secondary boycotts. It penalizes those who call wildcat strikes. It provides for financial accounting by unions to the secretary of labor and to the union membership.

The heart of the measure, however, is the five-member federal mediation board which would be superimposed on the present U. S. conciliation service. When this board intervened in a dispute, both employer and employe would have to keep on under the old terms of work for a maximum of 60 days.

The board would, of course, make every effort to settle the dispute during the 60 days. But in that period there could be neither a strike nor a lockout.

In the long hearings on the Case Bill last year, union leaders argued that in effect the law would be a compulsory-arbitration, no-strike law. The weapon of the strike can be used to get gains only when the rank and file of a union feel deeply enough to walk out of their jobs. Such a pitch of feeling does not endure for long.

You can argue that the 60-day cooling off period is therefore all to the good, since strikes are so destructive in their effect. But within organized labor, there is an entrenched belief that to surrender the right to strike is to surrender a weapon that will leave the union more or less powerless in bargaining with management.

There is another consideration that touches not union members alone but all of us. It gets down to this: is such a 60-day cooling off period enforceable? Would the law be workable on any practical basis of operation? Or would it breed defiance and a new kind of law?

In the extended labor hearings which the Republicans will hold after passage of the Case Bill, this question of workability should be seriously considered. A law that is unenforceable is worse than no law at all.

A law that requires a vast enforcement bureaucracy may produce more evils than those it was meant to cure, as we should have learned from prohibition.

The unions are beginning to correct some of the worst abuses. The older and more die-hard leaders are passing out of the picture. It would be better to make haste slowly than to risk all that has been gained.

Farmer's Diary: "Mulish Behavior."

WHEN I was just a lad, I went over the mountain into the next deep valley, to visit a neighbor boy. He saw me come, and pulled his homemade wagon down the stony lane to meet me. He invited me to get on then pulled me —to show his own strength and the endurance of his wagon—up to the corner of the pasture where his father had built two fragrant hay stacks, about a hundred yards apart.

In this enclosure, two energetic black mules were grazing. I watched them for a little, then "Why do those mules eat grass so close apart?" I demanded to know.

"Don't you know how mules act? Dad doesn't want them to eat the hay off of the stacks, when they can live on pasture, so he hitches 'em together, one on each end of that wire cable he got from a well-driller."

"Every time a mule comes near one of the stacks, the other one gets jealous and tugs him away—and so they eat the grass between the stacks and let the hay alone. Are mules always so dumb?" I wondered.

"Mules are just mules and that's all there is to it, Dad says. He's had three spans and each one was the same. They don't learn nothing different. If he'd put a pile of corn and one of oats out in that field neither mule would let the other touch it. They'd both go hungry first.

"You see, hitched together that way, with a stiff cable, each has the right to pull the other if he can—so they'll go pulling each other back and forth from morning to night until the birds, and the moles, and the rats and the rabbits, and the weather cleans up all the grain.

"We kin always tell when the grass is gettin' too short by the way they open their big mouths and holler. Dad calls it braying, but I think holler is more like it. The noise is so loud it makes the windows jingle in the summerhouse.

"Them' mules enjoy to fight! When it rains they could both go under the straw shed, but most of the time one'll pull the other away and they'll both get wet."

"I've known some folks like that," I ventured, laughing.

"Mom calls Dad mulish sometimes," he said then, "but he claims a little stubborness serves a good purpose, if a person knows how to put it to good use . . . mules don't got brains like folks do, but the way they act shows who's got the most."

Sometimes it would seem, to a plain farm man, that this world is just one big pasture . . . with varieties of mules.

State Patrol Investigated 99 More Accidents In 1946

The Mansfield station of the state highway patrol, increased from four to seven men a year ago, investigated 99 more traffic accidents which killed 10 more persons in 1946 than in 1945, Cpl. J. L. Bishop reported today.

"This year we plan to continue our safety drive to eliminate serious injury and death by highway accidents," Cpl. Bishop said.

The increase in traffic last year, after war-time gas and tire rationing was lifted, meant the investigation of 425 traffic accidents as compared with only 326 in 1945, Bishop reported.

The 1946 mishaps killed 17 persons and injured 311. All involved property damage. The number of arrests by patrolmen also showed a sharp increase. In 1946, 127 arrests were made as a result of accidents, 707 occurred in other "moving traffic" violations, and 208 arrests were made for various other misdemeanors, Bishop said.

The total of arrests, 1,042, compares with only 202, the grand total in 1945.

Other activities of the Mansfield patrol station in 1946 included the recovery of $12,300 worth of stolen property, compared with $15,500 worth in 1945, and the inspection of 122 school buses, compared with 114 in 1945.

Special details on which the patrol worked included the dedication of Mansfield's new municipal airport, the wreck of the Pennsylvania railroad's Golden Triangle passenger train in which 19 persons were killed, and the News-Journal's annual Soap Box derby.

THE RUN-AROUND

"I'm glad Dogs can't fly," said Blacky the Crow to Mrs. Blacky as from high in a tree out in the open they watched two Hounds on the trail of Reddy Fox.

"They wouldn't chase us if they could," said practical Mrs. Blacky.

"They might. You never can tell. I'm glad they can't fly," replied Blacky.

"It must be rather dreadful to feel that you can't get rid of some one following you the way those Dogs are following Reddy," said Mrs. Blacky.

"Don't worry about Reddy. He'll fool those Dogs and get rid of them," replied Blacky.

"How?" asked Mrs. Blacky.

"Don't ask me that. How should I know? I doubt if Reddy knows himself yet, but he'll find a way. He's smart, that Reddy. If there is any one on four feet who is smarter I don't know who it is. If we sit here and watch we'll see something worth seeing or my name isn't Blacky the Crow, which you know it is," said Blacky.

So they sat and watched and it was even as Blacky had said it would be. They saw Reddy try several tricks to break his trail and fool the Dogs. "Old tricks," said Blacky, a bit scornfully. "Every Fox knows those tricks and so does every Dog who has hunted Foxes a few times. Reddy will have to try something better than those or those Dogs will drive him under ground and that is something I have never known to happen yet. Look at him run! I wonder what he is up to now."

Reddy had suddenly begun to run as fast as he could so that he was rapidly getting far ahead of the Hounds. He raced down a road and slipped under the bars of an entrance to a field. Stone walls bounded one side and one end of that field. Reddy ran down the length of the field a little way out from the old stone wall, turned at the lower end, crossed the end of the field and turned again up the other side. Blacky began to chuckle. "I wonder if it will work," said he.

"You wonder what will work?" asked Mrs. Blacky.

"The trick he is trying. I saw him do it once before a long time ago, but on younger Dogs than those chasing him now, not so wise in the ways of Foxes as these two. Watch him now!" replied Blacky.

Reddy was back almost to upper end of the field. For a moment he stopped to listen to the Dogs now coming up the road and baying "Fox! Fox! Fox! Wow-ow-ow! Fox! Fox!" Very handsome Reddy looked as he stood there with one forefoot lifted, his head held high and his black ears cocked. He seemed to be grinning. Perhaps he wasn't, but it looked that way to Blacky and Mrs. Blacky. Then he turned and ran across that end of the field. As he came almost to the trail he had made running down the field he made a beautiful long jump over it, landing lightly on a big flat stone in the top of the wall. On this he lay down and curled up with just his black pointed ears and his eyes above his bushy tail in which his nose was buried. He didn't look at all like a Fox.

Mrs. Blacky could hardly believe her eyes. "Is he crazy?" she wanted to know.

Up the road came the Dogs, under the bars, their noses near the ground as they followed Reddy's scent. "Wow-ow-ow! Fox! Fox!" they bayed. Past Reddy curled up on the wall only a few feet away they ran without a glance to either side. They were depending on their noses, not their eyes. As soon as they were well down, the field Reddy jumped off the wall on the other side and was off. The Dogs circled the field. When they came to where Reddy had jumped to the wall they were running hard and didn't notice the break in the trail for almost at once they were back on the old trail down the field without being aware of it. Not until they had circled the field again did they realize that something was wrong and they had lost the trail, were simply doing a run-around.

"Is he crazy?" chuckled Blacky to Mrs. Blacky.

Early oil production methods recovered only 20 percent of the existing oil, but modern methods recover as much as 80 per cent.

MOTOR GIANTS PREPARE FOR HEAVY OUTPUT

Industry's Two Top Producers Aim at High '47 Goals.

By DAVID J. WILKIE
(AP Automotive Editor

DETROIT —(AP)— The battle of the motorcar industry's biggest producers—Chevrolet and Ford—will get under way again next Monday when the largest of the General Motors car and truck divisions resumes production after a week's shutdown for inventory and model change-over.

Chevrolet, which produced 667,260 cars and trucks last year, attained that volume despite the fact it was closed down during virtually all of the first three months because of the CIO United Automobile Workers strike. The Ford division of the Ford Motor company meanwhile was assembling 571,684.

So far this year Ford has made approximately 46,000 cars and trucks; up until it closed for inventory last Friday Chevrolet had accounted for 37,438.

Both Chevrolet and Ford, of course, should at least double their 1946 volume; given an uninterrupted flow of raw materials and parts they will do even better than that.

For at least another year or 18 months their problems will be concerned solely with production and the procurement of materials; each began the present year with approximately 1,500,000 unfilled orders on hand, and each reported a steady accumulation of demand.

Capacity Great.

Neither Chevrolet nor Ford used half its production capacity last year. Each has enlarged its manufacturing potentiality since the war, Chevrolet with the major portion of General Motors' more than $500,000,000 expansion and rehabilitation fund and Ford with a large slice of the $225,000,000 earmarked for the enlargement of manufacturing operations.

Chevrolet soon will bring in two more assembly plants at Flint, Mich., and Van Nuys, Calif., to give it the greatest production potential in its 35 years history. Ford, meanwhile, has been clearing the decks for battle by disposing, one after another, of all the company enterprises not directly connected with the manufacture of motor vehicles.

Coincidentally it has brought into its production and administrative divisions a number of new executives charged solely with expediting production and distribution. Several of them, like the widely known Ernest R. Breech, executive vice-president, and Harold Youngren, engineering executive were drafted from the General Motors high command.

How many cars and trucks Chevrolet and Ford could make at capacity operations may not be determined this year. In 1941 Chevrolet turned out 1,295,900 and Ford division of Ford made 923,000. Each will reach or surpass those figures this year if the overall output of the industry is to attain the hoped-for 4,500,000 passenger and 1,000,000 commercial vehicles.

Barclay on Bridge

A FINE declarer's skill is employed for three purposes. Ordinarily we think of it as exercised mainly to make a contract and secondarily to produce extra tricks. It is also valuable in a third cause—limiting his losses on contracts which he cannot possibly make. When you stop to think of it, any one of these has the same net effect on the ultimate result—cutting down the total of losses or increasing the total of winnings.

That was about as far from good bidding as you are likely to see, since East and West could have made a heart game without difficulty.

After West took the heart K and Q and led the club 2 to the K and A, South saw he had a chance for a gorgeous score on the tournament hand if he could limit his loss to down one. Losing two tricks in hearts, plus two in clubs and one in spades, would bring him that result if he could avoid losing a trick in diamonds. So he strove for that.

The diamond A and Q were scored, leaving in dummy a tenace over West's trumps. The club 6 was then led, whereupon West scored both the J and Q for his book. He returned the heart A, which South ruffed, a spade being thrown from dummy. The spade 7 was led to the A for the setting trick, and West returned the heart, 2 which South ruffed with his last trump, another spade being discarded from dummy.

The established club 10 was led. West having to follow and the spade K being discarded, leaving dummy only its two trumps. The spade 10 was now led, and West had to play from his diamond J-8 before the dummy's K-9, so the defender's trumps were shut out.

CRIMELESS WAVE

ENDS CONSTIPATION AFTER 30 YEARS

Eating famous cereal daily brought lasting relief

Wouldn't you welcome a way to end constipation, without harsh laxatives? Then read this sincere, unsolicited letter:

"I was constipated for thirty years and during that time took many kinds of laxatives. All I got was temporary relief. About five weeks ago I decided to try KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN for breakfast every morning and since then I haven't had to take a single laxative. I can't tell you how glad I am that I heard about ALL-BRAN." Wilson Gibson, 307 West Valley St., Morrilton, Ark.

You, too, may never have to take another laxative if you suffer from constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. Simply eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day—and drink plenty of water. Try it for ten days! If not completely satisfied with the results, send the empty carton to the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Michigan, and get double your money back!

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative but a wholesome food made from the vital outer layers of wheat. For best results eat as a cereal, or in muffins. Get KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN at your grocer's today. —Adv.

Final Pre-Nuptial Party Given for Miss Dirlam

THE LAST in the series of pre-nuptial parties for Miss Sara Snow Dirlam preceding her marriage to Lowell Bailet Saturday was given last night. Miss Jean Herring, who returned from New York to be a bridesmaid in the wedding, was hostess for the spinster dinner.

A group of 12 of Miss Dirlam's friends including Miss Dorothy Varisco and Mrs. Cosmo Guido of Bryan, Texas and Miss Constance Whiteley of York, Pa. gathered at Miss Herring's home on West Third street prior to dinner in the club room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The table was decorated with an arrangement of pink roses and snapdragons. Following dinner the group made a bride's book.

* * *

Mrs. Richard R. Stander honored Miss Dirlam with a dessert-bridge shower Tuesday evening at her home on Andover road.

Following the presentation of the shower gifts the group of 16 guests played bridge. Prizes were won by Mrs. Joseph Prewitt, Mrs. Edwin Jelliff, Miss Jean Herring and Mrs. Avery C. Hand jr.

* * *

Monday afternoon Miss Anne Loughridge entertained for her cousin, Miss Dirlam, in the club room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel with a luncheon and kitchen shower.

Prizes for bridge were won by Mrs. Tom Siegenthaler, Miss Dorothy Varisco and Mrs. Richard Sturges.

The centerpiece of the luncheon table was a clever arrangement of evergreens and kitchen utensils.

Miss Dirlam and Mr. Bailet will be married in a closed ceremony at the Park Avenue Baptist church Saturday evening.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, January 17.

BY means of a soundly studied and well-organized program, with carefully considered techniques, ways and means, it is probable that a highly beneficial change may come into the circumstances and beget much satisfaction and happiness. Under such benign promise, with substantial and enduring foundations, there are signs of splendid support and recognition of merit for perhaps long-term protracted labors. Or the sense of duty and responsibility may rate worthy returns for fidelity.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which there may materialize certain lasting and appropriate returns for long-term endeavors, in which sound, constructive and faithful performance may at last win approbation and generous recognition from employers, elders or other sources of appreciation. It may be well to work to this end with studied development of plans and objectives for far-reaching security and dependability. Well-considered thought and high purpose, patience, integrity, good sense and duty, bring their own rich rewards.

Mother, This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Wonderful

Saves Real Money. No Cooking. Quick Results.

To get the most surprising relief from coughs due to colds, you can easily prepare a medicine, right in your own kitchen. It's very easy—needs no cooking, and tastes so good that children take it willingly. But you'll say it's hard to beat for results

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a pint bottle. Fill up with your syrup. This gives you a full pint of really splendid cough syrup—about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and lasts a long time.

And for real, quick relief, it's very effective. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for quick action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way. —Adv

Fights Dialect Jokes

A NATIONS HUMOR advances with its civilization. There is a difference between a joke which is funny and a caricature which is cruel. . . . Racial differences once were hilariously funny until Hitler turned them into ghastly nightmares. . . . What was once a light allusion to a half dozen nationalities has become heavy reference to forty million dead.

An Irishman (with a hod on his back) caused great stage laughter fifty years ago. But the Kellys and the Donovans carried the brunt of battle when the chips were down. . . . An Italian organ-grinder was a standard act a few years ago, but too many Johnny Basilones died cranking machine guns to make it funny any longer. . . . The blackface was a broad caricature for half a century, but the million Negroes (who wore battle dress) have made the striped pants of the minstrel obsolete. . . . On the American stage an Englishman always lacks a sense of humor. But 25,000 Royal Air Force fliers who (with a smile on their lips) went to their death against Hitler have made that interpretation of England ridiculous. . . . The haggling of Jewish peddlers was always a side-splitter, but Meyer Levin asked for no bargain when it came time for him to lay down his life.

It is about time that the stage, the screen and the networks did their own laundry. . . . In the middle ages kings amused themselves by watching cripples. . . . In the 20th Century some Americans think there are things far more funny than a personally conducted tour through Hitler's morgue. . . . It is impossible to clap your hands for a comic who makes fun of millions of outstretched arms.

The management at the Beachcomber (Miami Beach), a top-flight spot, has sent the following memo to its entertainers:

"Backstage! Performers in the Beachcomber will please omit from their routines anything that would be offensive to any nationality or creed. Please confer with me about re-arranging your act, if this in any way interferes with your routines. Let me be the judge, please, about what audiences would enjoy at my club. Thank you—Ned Schuyler."

* * *

"Winchell: Regarding your protests against comedians using anti-racial material we are back of you 100 per cent. A resolution will be proposed at next meeting of Special Material Writers Guild that we as writers who supply performers with material will refuse to write anything that is defamatory to any race or religion —Allan Walker, Chairman."

* * *

"The finest thing is the current drive against comedians who besmirch any race with accented jokes. You were first to stop using Mefoofsky quips and Scotsmen gags, too. Fifteen years ago Ed Wynn told me the most dangerous person in the world was the comic who went in for dialect jokes. Ed Wynn was the strongest against this sort of stuff in entire show business.—Nick Kenny."

Ickes Likes Bargains

WASHINGTON — Breathless and busting with good news, I bring my fellow citizens word this beautiful day that we have had the privilege and honor to provide a beautiful summer home set in a park of 2200 acres for Harold L. Ickes and the lucky girl who was won by his niggardly, miserly, curmudgeonly charm and their bairns these last few years. Old Mr. Ickes, who calls himself a liberal in the strictly political sense of the word, a limited meaning never to be confused with extravagance in his case, is noted for his scrupulous honesty.

An Eskimo, up in Alaska, near the Arctic Circle, which was included in his jurisdiction when he was secretary of the interior, coined a phrase about him, a few days before Christmas several years ago.

"Mr. Ickes," this Eskimo said, and I quote, "is as honest as the day is long."

Having no such gift of poetic expression, myself, I resort to a homely comparison. In the Arizona desert we have a little rodent also noted for his honesty, known as the pack rat or trade rat. The pack, or trade rat will pick up little trinkets, such as a diamond ring or a jewelled watch and whisk them off to his hole in the ground, if you don't watch out, but he always leaves something in exchange, often a piece of old, dead cholla, which is a small cactus with stickers all over it and suitable for throwing away if you use tongs, or a rusty bottle-cap which he considers to be a fair trade for that which has caught his eye.

* * *

ON INQUIRY directed at Under-Secretary Oscar Chapman, I learned some years ago the Rockefellers and others contributed money to buy a passel of land at Bar Harbor, Me., and gave it to the national park service as a public park. That a gentleman named Homan bequeathed his house and 18 acres to his country to be embraced in Acadia park. That the department of the interior adopted a regulation under Mr. Ickes, which gives the secretary first claim for summer occupancy. That the house has a beautiful great living room with a large fire-place and a picture window overlooking a bluff to the bay, three bed-rooms, a servant's room, dining room, kitchen and bath, and was furnished by the interior department at a cost of about $3,500 in 1943. That by the terms of the deed this house was to be available to "government officials and other prominent citizens" for summer use. And that the department, under Mr. Ickes, determined not to be mercenary and thus to charge only a "very moderate" rent.

Mr. Chapman said the rent was $50 a month and that Mr. Ickes had put himself down for August and, sometimes, September, for, "I think three years," including 1946, when he was no longer secretary.

Unlike some contemptibles who exploit their positions to get something for nothing, Mr. Ickes always insists on paying at least a very moderate amount for everything he gets from the government. He adhered to that policy, though it may have cut an old miser to the heart, when, on two occasions, he put himself away in the naval hospital for treatment, services, room and board at $3 50 a day, because the civilian hospitals were not very good and much more expensive.

Sees German Problem

AS THE CONFERENCE on Germany and Austria begins in London, it appears that there is something very near to agreement among the European states which are the neighbors of Germany. This is most encouraging.

Without their willing consent and active participation a settlement made by the three big non-European powers would have to be imposed not only on Germany but on Europe. An imposed settlement could hardly work well. Nor would it last very long.

For this reason, it is not only the right of France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, Poland and Czechoslovakia to be heard and to be listened to; it is necessary to the success of the settlement that they be treated as principles in making it. They are in the first line, and the proper role of the Big Three is to promote, improve, sponsor and guarantee a European settlement which can be agreed upon by Europeans.

The memorandum of the Netherlands states the German problem and indicates the principle on which a solution will have to be sought. The problem which has to be solved is that "on the one hand, the economic recovery of Germany is a prerequisite for the economic recovery of Europe and for a healthy world economy. On the other, the economic recovery of Germany implies the increase of Germany's war potential."

The western neighbors of Germany, as well as Czechoslovakia, and, if free to choose, Poland, also, would certainly agree on the principle of the Netherlands memorandum—that the best hope lies in a high degree of decentralization of Germany—accompanied by "the deconcentration of economic power."

German industry and German manpower are a war potential if they can be regimented and administered as a unit by a central government. If the central government cannot command the whole German economy, if common action depends upon obtaining the consent of the different German states and of industrial plants owned and managed locally, the war potential will be greatly reduced.

Germany can, in other words, be encouraged to be prosperous provided she does not have a powerful central government.

* * *

TO INSIST on the economic unification of Germany under a Berlin government before the political decentralization has been accomplished, and the great cartels broken up, would be an irreparable mistake. All the European countries take that view, and, if we adhere to our own convictions, we must take the same view. For what the Europeans want is the kind of Germany which we have started to establish in our own zone.

To unify and reconstruct Germany and then to start decentralizing her is impossible. Germany can be decentralized only while she lacks a strong central government. Once she has a strong central government, the Germans who run that government will be able and will be determined to deny effective authority to the separate states. Once the eggs have been scrambled in Berlin, they will never again be unscrambled.

This, in essence, has been the French thesis from the beginning, and it may now be said that it is the European thesis. Each of the European countries, France included, has its special claims upon Germany. They will have to be mediated and reconciled. But over-riding the special claims there is now a common conception of the kind of Germany which can be brought into a European community. It is a Germany which cannot act as one powerful and dominating state in the heart of Europe, but is instead a confederation of German states, each sufficiently autonomous to form connections with its neighboring countries.

Thus instead of a firmly united Germany in the midst of a disunited Europe, the way would be opened toward a united Europe, in which the several German states, none in itself very strong, would play their equal parts.

FARM EXHIBIT TO SHOW HOW TO SAVE TIME

Display To Be Set Up Feb. 14 on Springmill Street.

The huge Ohio Farm Home and Labor Saving exhibit, which is coming to Mansfield Feb. 14, will be shown at the Young Implement store at 435 Springmill street.

The show, developed at Ohio State university and now touring the state, will bring to Mansfield 67 exhibits of farm and home labor saving devices which could be put to use on any farm.

Departments into which the show has been divided are agronomy, farm management, dairy, poultry, swine, sheep, beef, horticulture and garden, entomology, agricultural engineering, home economics and farm labor and extension.

Included among the 5,000 square feet of exhibits on farm field arrangements and soil management, are an approved milk house, feed cart, gutter cleaner, milk pail cart and two panels with ideas for producing quality milk.

There will be flock handling and poultry rearing equipment, sheep treating and barn equipment, exhibits of chemical weed control and DDT fly and insect control.

A mechanical unloading wagon, hay and ear corn feed driers, electric power savers and ideas for saving labor in hay making are included.

Display For Women.

For the women there will be cupboard space savers, a portable sewing cabinet and a dress form stand.

A special feature will be a trailer carrying demonstrations of equipment for handling water on the farm and in the home.

Richland county farmers who have worked out time and labor-saving devices will be invited to display the devices. Farmers and farm women who have worked out such ideas of their own or who know of others who have were urged to notify the county agent's office so that selections may be made to provide a good show without repetition.

Purpose of the show is not to sell any products, but to sell time and labor saving ideas and to stimulate interest in them, County Agent George B. Ganyard said.

The show will be open to visitors from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., and will require approximately two hours to inspect, Ganyard said.

Attending the general committee meeting to formulate preliminary plans for the show were Gail Hammett, Farm Bureau; Arthur A. Mellick, Grange; Reese Mills and John G. Routzon, Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Martin Frank, Richland County Rural Women's Home council; Charles Young, implement dealer; Miss Mabel Spray, home demonstration agent; Ganyard, Harold Robinson, and Arthur Anderson.

FOUNDER OF VAN WERT PEONY FETE NOW "SELLS" MANSFIELD TO WORLD

By KEN WOODMAN
(News-Journal Executive Editor)

Of course you've heard of the Van Wert peony festival. Until it was interrupted by the war it annually attracted 100,000 visitors over one week-end each summer to the little western Ohio city of 10,000 population.

But did you know that the man who founded and developed this festival is now a Mansfielder? He's John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce. He was with the C. of C. in Van Vert, too.

Routzon tells the story this way:

"When I went to Van Wert there were four or five so-called peony gardens. That is, people raised an acre or two of peonies and sold the bulbs commercially.

"Naturally, when these giant beds of peonies were in bloom they made a beautiful sight. People from Lima, Wapakoneta and Ft. Wayne began to call us to ask what Sunday the flowers would be in bloom. We decided it would be easier to notify the newspapers in nearby cities of the blooming dates than to answer all the telephone calls. This we did. To our surprise we had huge crowds of sightseers over the week-end."

* * *

ROUTZON SAW the obvious business possibilities in this. The following year, 1928, he sent out notices to all Ohio newspapers. When the peonies bloomed, Van Wert was literally overrun with visitors.

"They completely ate out every restaurant in town," Routzon recalls. "After that, hot dog stands and food tents were set up at the edge of town to accommodate the crowds—and make money!"

But the fame of the festival was just beginning. By 1931 it had become nationwide. There was a peony pageant with floats encrusted with flowers. Little girls, dressed in their Sunday best, boarded all trains and buses entering Van Wert and gave each passenger a peony.

"Probably those people had no idea where they were when they got to Van Wert," Routzon says, "but they certainly knew where they had been when they left!"

* * *

LESS WIDELY known but an accomplishment of which Routzon is just as proud is the bringing of the Liederkrantz cheese factory to Van Wert

"Van Wert county is largely agricultural. Grain raising was then the chief business and prices were low. We persuaded the farmers, with the help of the state agricultural extension service, that they needed to diversify their crops. We also began looking around for a home market for them so they would not lose the middleman's profit as they did in grain.

"We heard the Liederkrantz Cheese company at Monroe, N. Y., was going to be forced to move because all the milk from the Monroe area was being bought up for metropolitan distribution. We invited the officials out to Ohio. They liked the set-up and bought their own ground and erected their own plant. All we did was promise them 25,000 pounds of milk a day."

* * *

ROUTZON GRINNED at the memory.

"Well, as a general rule there were only one or two cows per farm in the county. On the day the plant opened there were only 12,000 pounds of milk delivered. We got busy."

Business men, including Routzon himself, bought cows and gave them to farmers under various arrangements for easy repayment. (Routzon took half of all the calves—and made money on his investment!)

The chamber of commerce imported good dairy cows from Michigan and sold them at the fairgrounds at cost. Presently the cheese factory was getting its quota. It is now Van Wert's mainstay industry, buying 190,000 pounds of milk daily.

HOW ROUTZON got to Van Wert and eventually to Mansfield is a story in itself.

He was born in Findlay and began delivering daily newspapers there at the age of 10. During his spare time he worked in various stores and factories. When he entered high school he took time out to play football and basketball and earned himself an athletic scholarship to Findlay college.

He attended college classes in the morning and worked at the chamber of commerce in the afternoon. A few weeks before the end of his senior year he was offered a full time job as secretary of the Van Wert chamber. He took it and was permitted to return to Findlay college to receive his sheepskin at commencement. That was in 1925.

On New Year's day 1929 he went to Flint, Mich., as full time secretary of the junior chamber and assistant secretary to the senior group. Two years later he became manager of the Flint C. of C. Those were rugged years There was a depression on and Flint was a one industry town—General Motors. Routzon weathered the worst of it and then in 1937 he went to Lancaster, O. He came to Mansfield on April 2, 1940, replacing Paul Williams, who left here for Dayton.

* * *

THE RECORD of the Mansfield chamber since Routzon's arrival is pretty well known. A union railway station was built, ending a 20-year wrangle; a $600,000 viaduct and underpass eliminated a serious traffic hazard on West Fourth street road at the edge of the city, a $2,000,000 Class V airport was dedicated, and the membership grew to 1148, making Mansfield's the largest C of C for any city of comparable size in the United States. The chamber has also taken a direct interest in the preliminaries to the construction of the Clear Fork conservancy dam to increase the city water supply.

Routzon is a member of the First Presbyterian church, the Rotary club, the Elks and the Moose. He lives with his wife and daughter at 18 Parkwood boulevard. His daughter, Carolyn, is a senior at Mansfield Senior high school.

Hospital's Waiting List Now Contains 40 Names

The need for more rooms at Mansfield General hospital has become so acute that the hospital has a waiting list of several dozen potential patients, Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, superintendent, said today.

"Yesterday we had a waiting list of 40 who wanted to come to the hospital for surgery or treatment," Dr. Fonkalsrud explained.

"Since we have had to take the beds out of the corridors, because of fire hazards, we haven't had room to take care of all who wish to be admitted.

"We're taking emergencies at once, of course," Dr. Fonkalsrud continued, "and the others as rapidly as possible and in the order on the list."

Mansfield is not alone as far as crowded conditions are concerned, Dr. Fonkalsrud pointed out. The procedure followed by General hospital here in taking emergencies first, then patients in the order in which their names appear on the waiting list is being followed by hospitals throughout the country, he said.

Double Up In Single Rooms.

Some relief has been achieved at General hospital by putting extra beds in the single rooms and in using all available space that can be utilized for the care of patients. However, Dr. Fonkalsrud pointed out, there is some hospital space, in the basement for instance, which is not adequately equipped for the proper care of ill persons.

The building of a new maternity wing, expected to be started in the early spring, will ease the situation somewhat but will not completely relieve a condition that grows more critical as Mansfield increases in population, Dr. Fonkalsrud declared.

County commissioners today had approved the employment of Mrs. Maxine Littleton, 23 West Arch street, as a practical nurse, and Mrs. Inez Bailes, 111 West Prospect street, as a relief cook at the county tuberculosis sanatorium.

Commissioners also had raised the salary of Mrs. Mayme Robinson, wife of Sheriff Frank E. Robinson, from $100 to $120 per month as matron at the county jail, and renewed for a year the contract with Mrs Goldie Matuck for providing and serving meals to county jail prisoners. The fee remains at 33 and ½ cents a meal, the same as last year.

BREATHING SPELL—

Only two cases were heard this morning in municipal court, giving court officials and clerks a breathing spell from successive days of heavy dockets that built up to 38 cases yesterday. Thirty of the cases were handled yesterday afternoon in a traffic court session that lasted until 4 p. m.

COULDN'T HAPPEN HERE—

The foresight of Mansfield's "city fathers" years ago will protect the city from any such bitter legal battles as are now raging in Georgia courts, as a result of the death of Gov.-Elect Eugene Talmadge who died before he could take office.

Years ago council adopted an ordinance that automatically makes the president of council the head of the city government should the mayor die at any time following his election.

FLOWERS FOR THE SICK—

Patients in Mansfield's hospitals and shut-ins at home are enjoying the beauty of 29 floral pieces taken from the Grace Episcopal church following memorial services for Mrs. Annette Coulter Bromfield. The pieces included huge baskets of seasonal flowers and several vases of roses. Several were taken by neighbors of the Bromfields at Malabar for sick members of their families, several were placed on family graves and the rest were sent to sick persons in the Mansfield area.

MOVE TO CURB VIOLATIONS GETS RESULTS

In traffic and municipal courts yesterday 30 drivers were fined a total of $250 and costs. Nineteen were fined on speeding charges.

About a third of the cases were filed by the state highway patrol. The rest are the results of Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals' campaign to "cut down accidents by stepping up arrests."

Born in Jackson township, March 25, 1878, Mrs. Browneller was a life-long resident of Richland county. Surviving besides her husband, are one daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Hess of Franklin township; two grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Elzy Boyce also of Franklin township, and one brother Fred Cairns of Shenandoah.

Flood-Control Plan Calls For Big Sewer, Elevated Street

Preliminary discussions centering around an already prepared plan to protect the Wayne-Orange street area from flashfloods such as inundated that area last summer, will be held tonight between council's sewer committee and officials of the Tappan Stove company and the Westinghouse Electric corporation.

Announcement of the meeting was made by Councilman Clifford G. Knarr, chairman of council's sewer committee.

Under the plan prepared by an engineering firm at the direction of the two firms, the city would pay for construction of a heavy duty sewer and the elevating of one street at an estimated cost of $37,000.

The plan also provides for the construction of various bunkers and drainage systems on the properties of the two companies.

Industries are pressing for protection against flashfloods in this area partly because of the fear of terrific explosions which would result should water reach the enameling furnaces that cannot be cooled safely in time to meet such an emergency.

Beltin' Ben Back

RICHMOND, Calif.—(U.P.)—The familiar name of Beltin' Ben Hogan, which dropped completely out of sight at the Bing Crosby pro-amateur last week, was back in the role of "man to beat" in the $10,000 Richmond Open golf tournament which got under way here today.

Minor Leagues Get Bonus Rule For Approval

CINCINNATI — (INS) — The far flung minor leagues sat in judgment today upon efforts of their major loop brothers to establish a uniform bonus provision.

The big leaguers' executive council set up the first uniform code yesterday and submitted it to George Trautman for ratification by his national association membership.

The council defined a bonus player as any free agent other than a manager who signs a contract in consideration of a bonus or promise of a bonus.

For the sake of definition "bonus" was defined as any sum in excess of the following minimums: majors, $6,000; class AAA, $4,000; AA, $3,000; A-1, $2,500; A, $2,000; B, $1,500; C, $1,200, D and E, $800.

The proposed agreement prohibits optioning or outright assignment of bonus players to lower classification leagues without asking waivers.

Effective date of the rule would be 30 days after Commissioner A. B. Chandler notified club owners of minor league acceptance of the provisions.

A fine for violators of the ruling was set at $2,000 for major league clubs, $1,000 for minor loop teams and $500 for individuals involved. The player would become a free agent.

Data Available on Return To Servicemen's Bodies to U. S.

Mansfield next of kin and relatives of service men who lost their lives overseas during World War II may obtain a pamphlet containing information about the government's program for returning servicemen's bodies, by writing to the War Department, Columbus General Depot, Columbus 15, O.

This announcement was made today by Col. H S Evans, commanding officer of the depot, who said the war department expects to get its repatriation program under way about Feb. 1.

First step will be to query the next of kin of men buried in seven cemeteries in Hawaii and the Henri Chapelle cemetery in Belgium as to what they want done with the remains. Questionnaires will be mailed to these people about the first of next month.

The next of kin have four choices—they can ask that the man be buried in a permanent military cemetery overseas, in a private cemetery overseas, in any national cemetery in this country, or in any private cemetery in the U. S The government will pay all expenses, except for burial in a private cemetery in this country In these cases, the government will allow $50 to help defray expenses.

War department officials expect the actual return of the remains of the men from the first eight cemeteries to begin in August. The seven Hawaii cemeteries from which the remains will be removed, if the relatives wish, are Nakaweli on Kauai island, Mahawua on Maui island, Homelani on Hilo island, and Scofield barracks, Nakapu, Kuuanu and Halawa on Oahu island.

After the poll is taken of the next of kin of the 18,600 men in these eight cemeteries, next of kin of men in other cemeteries will be polled as climatic and transportation conditions make repatriation possible.

Jefferson Davis, as a young lieutenant on a tour of duty in 1838, built the original Presque Isle lighthouse on Lake Huron. Today it is a shrine to the president of the southern Confederacy.

WARNS AGAINST BAD VACCINES

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Dr. Wendell M Stanley of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research warned last night against certain impure influenza vaccines now on the market.

Stanley, 1946 Nobel prize winner in chemistry, told the Detroit section of the American Chemical society that impure vaccines may cause "unfavorable reactions."

Of the four types of influenza vaccine now on sale, Stanley said, only one, developed under his direction and available to all biological manufacturers, is prepared by centrifugal force.

The methods used in preparing the other three types "are not very effective in the purification of the virus," he said.

"The worth or immunizing potency of a vaccine is due to the virus which it contains and not to non-virus protein impurities," Stanley said. "As a matter of fact, such impurities may be responsible for unfavorable reactions following the administration of the vaccine."

He added that large-scale use of impure vaccines might make patients sensitive to proteins and cause them to "suffer serious reactions."

Stanley said war-time development of effective vaccines averted the possibility of a major influenza epidemic similar to that which claimed 15,000,000 lives and affected 500,000,000 persons in 1918
